CLEAR - Theory of Change

- Financial resources
- Secretariat support
- Support among RCS

Regional Centers have strategic clients
Regional centers build strong networks
Regional Centers have strong service delivery capacity

Clients’ knowledge of M+E and evidence increases
Clients make evidence based decisions
Regional centers become sustainable
Clients have high quality M+E systems

Vision: Development anchored in evidence, learning and mutual accountability

Notes:
- The belief that joint-production result drives sustainability is a key underlying principle of the ToC.
- Shifting from the results level of improved client knowledge of M+E to clients using this knowledge for evidenced-based decision making and improving M+E systems requires the assumptions that clients have political will and sufficient administrative capacities.